highest U.S. and International reliability standards.

“Understanding that “Size Matters”, we designed our condoms to offer more comfort, fit, sensitivity and elasticity while maintaining their integrity, reliability and strength - which is always a main concern for the user”, said Griffith. “Just like fashion, our condoms - as the name aptly implies - make a “big impression” and users will be proud to display, carry and use the condom that everyone is talking about.”

Mandingo® Sensitive Condoms provide a more comfortable fitting condom, made from natural rubber latex (NRL). This premium latex has all the positive qualities of a latex condom, including barrier protection, tensile strength, tactile sensitivity, elasticity, comfort and fit. The NRL is an all-natural material that is biodegradable, has a low latex odor and has been specially processed to significantly reduce the risk of individuals developing an allergic response to the latex such as skin irritations from condom use. We expect the Mandingo Condom to be ideal for latex sensitive users or those who just want to try something new.
